

What is the real reason that world governments are pressing so aggressively on society the full acceptance of woke mythology, particularly transgenderism and the like, and insisting with growing tenacity on punishing those who oppose it?

Well, let's begin by considering their own arguments. We are told that it is for DEI – Diversity, Equity and Inclusion. This may seem reasonable enough to some, even loving, but we need to examine what is actually meant by those terms. “Diversity,” here, does not mean welcoming people of different colour, language and ethnic background, but forcing people to accept a non-existent species of humanity, namely, people who are neither male nor female. “Equity,” in turn, does not mean equality of opportunity, but equality (or rather uniformity) of outcome, that being an enslavement imposed by the will of a socialist tyranny over their subjects and not allowing them any dissenting voices. And “Inclusion,” finally, really means exclusion – that's right – it's about excluding the Christian and anyone else who holds to traditional and other historically-recognized moral standards. The Muslim, for instance, would also fall into this category.

As you can see, learning about woke mythology is rather like learning a new language, except in this case the words that sound familiar are given a new and altogether different meaning from anything we had previously been taught. Who are the people who buy into this strange ideology? They fall into four distinct groups, and it's well worth noting who they are: (1) there are people in their number who support ‘the current thing’; (2) there are others who actually believe what they are told, and they believe, too, that it will be to their advantage to do so; (3) there are those who do not believe what they hear, but do not want to get into any kind of trouble by opposing it; and (4) there are those, such as unprincipled journalists, who are willing to go along with almost anything if promised a significant increase of wealth, influence and popularity.

But let's go back to the question before us. Why are many governments in the west – in the English-speaking world particularly, but not exclusively – so determined to impose this utterly indefensible ideology, including transgenderism and the sexualizing of young children, on its own citizens? We must look past their arguments if we want to see clearly what hides behind them. The goal of this movement is to establish what is known as ‘the great reset’; it's for the global elite to set up a one world government by which they amass for themselves even greater wealth than they presently have and exercise full dominion over everyone else. They see themselves as God, in other words, as those who are wise enough at least and deserve therefore the privilege of ruling the world, of determining what can and should be done with all the lower class of people beneath them and under their direct control. It's something similar to a grand game of Monopoly in which those who see themselves to be winning are unwilling to end playing it until they have successfully accumulated every property, plus all the power and prestige they think they might achieve in doing so.

To establish a new-world order it is of course essential, first, to abolish the old-world order, to erase the law of God, to decimate every moral and legal standard that has ever been embraced and is still seen to be standing in the way. No room can be given, for instance, to faith, family and freedom. Such cherished principles must be eliminated. It is believed by the elites that every perverted practice and deviant sexual activity is to be promoted therefore, that those who oppose them are to be punished, and that this is the only way to overturn the present system. It's rather like bulldozing a large terrain, getting rid of every trace of what is in the way, in order to lay the foundation for a new, altogether different and seemingly superior structure. That is how these self-appointed and self-aggrandizing leaders see what they are doing, and there is no question in their minds that they are well on their way to achieving it. Oh, they will use every fear tactic they can think of to establish public confidence in their schemes, such as the non-existent 'climate change' crisis and the claim that they are the only ones who can fix it, but the end-game is nothing less than world domination.

Does this elite class really care for the rights and privileges of the LGBTQ community, and will they continue to protect and promote them once these confused people who see themselves as victims have served their purpose? No, not in the least. The Book of Revelation makes abundantly clear in its sixth vision, chapters 17-19, that the harlot Babylon (sexual misconduct), though in league with the first beast (ungodly government), will eventually be utterly destroyed by that very government which had first promoted her! She was only a means to a particular end after all. We can all – including the sexually deviant – learn an important lesson from that, and preferably sooner rather than later.
